

My Friends are Dora's friends

I've encouraged my friends to ask Dora's help and taught them how to use the prayer card and also where to write the favour once Dora granted it. Two of these friends found their cell phones, another was able to salvage her laptop after spilling tea on it, and another was able to remove a nasty stain from a silk fabric...

07/16/2015

A few days before I needed Dora's intercession, I encouraged a couple of friends to ask Dora's help and taught them how to use the prayer card and also where to write the favour once Dora granted it.

Two of these friends found their cell phones, another was able to salvage her laptop after spilling tea on it, and another was able to remove a nasty stain from a silk fabric. All have yet to write their favours.

It is finally my turn to write another favour received from Dora. I lost my rosary and told Dora that I was sure she was going to help me find it. Then, I was going to write the favour and tell the others to do the same. My rosary had been missing for a couple of days and I couldn't remember where I last put it. Before going to bed, I left it in the hands of Dora. Then when I woke up, Dora helped me "remember" to check my skirt

(which I thought had no pockets), and sure enough it was there. I put it on my to-do list that I was going to write this favour.

Then today I was having technical difficulties. We changed our internet provider and I couldn't figure out how to set up my printer with the wireless settings. I asked Dora to help me figure it out...and then I promised that as soon as she granted it, I would immediately write it on her blog.

So here I am. She helped me figure out how to do the set up and now I can print again.

Thanks, Dora!

M.L. (Canadá)

en-au/article/my-friends-are-doras-friends/ (01/31/2026)