At 1400 Meters Altitude

While hiking a mountain, upon arriving at our destination - 1400 meters altitude - an intense fog settled in, and we could no longer see the trail we needed to follow. We asked another hiker if the fog was supposed to let up.

While hiking a mountain, upon arriving at our destination at 1400 meters altitude, an intense fog settled over us, and we could no longer see the trail we needed to follow. We asked another hiker if the fog would eventually clear. He told us that if by this time it hadn't lifted, it wouldn't let up later and furthermore, it would most likely rain.

Without losing hope, we prayed to Dora's intercession, asking that the fog might go away, or at least clear off our path. After an hour, while we were taking a little break, the fog cleared away to a beautiful panorama that can only be contemplated from such heights.

I attribute this little miracle to the powerful intercession of Dora.
