Benedict XVI “has enlightened the Church and the world admirably with his magisterium . . . he has highlighted how faith and reason, far from being opposed to each other, can cooperate together for a greater knowledge of God and a deeper understanding of man” (Bishop Javier Echevarría, Prelate of Opus Dei, Pastoral letter, 1 March 2013).

We have put together in this eBook some of the most important interventions of Benedict XVI in the area of faith and reason, including an address from 2005, when he was Prefect of the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith.

The texts are taken from www.vatican.va and www.catholiceducation.org and include:

- Conference in Subiaco

On the crisis of cultures. 1 April 2005.

- Lecture at the University of Regensburg

On faith, reason and the university. 12 September 2006.

- Homily in Regensburg

On the rationality of faith. 12 September 2006.

- Address in the College des Bernardins, Paris
