“I have reminded you on other occasions that we don’t do apostolate, we are apostles. We Christians are Christ passing by along the paths of the earth. And despite our personal littleness, we want, with God’s grace, to illumine intellects with clear doctrine, to erase the filth of sin with our own expiation, to enkindle hearts with love” (The Father, Letter 11 September 2024).

Conscious of being called by God to take His message of salvation to many people, let us pray during these months that we all live out the apostolic dimension of our vocation through a daring daily apostolic plan, backed up by generous mortification and sacrifice.
