Social initiatives and projects

Some corporate works and social initiatives of members of Opus Dei in the Philippines

02/27/2025

THROUGH THE YEARS, the faithful of Opus Dei in the Philippines, with cooperators, friends, and others moved by the social doctrine of the Church, have come together to establish and run various educational, charitable and cultural undertakings with the aim of addressing pressing social needs.

The University of Asia and the Pacific, established in 1995, is an institution of higher learning that offers undergraduate, master's, and doctoral degrees, as well as short programs in various fields of specialization. The University's programs are grounded in liberal arts education, with special orientation towards values education, people development, research, and communication. The precursor of UA&P was the Center for Research and Communication, an economic think tank begun in 1967.
