

opusdei.org

Members and cooperators in Britain

In this section we have collected testimonies from people in Britain.

02/07/2007

Damaso Azagra was born in Spain. He studied in Oxford and has worked in an architectural studio in London for many years. He will now be ordained a priest in order to serve in a different way.

In Memoriam: John Henry (1939-2007)

The life of Professor John Henry was a shining example of how Christian faith can be the inspiration for an outstanding professional career, following the spirit of Opus Dei.

Elitist, Opus Dei? I don't think so

Kathleen McCormick, is a carer, cleaner, grandmother and a Co-operator of Opus Dei. She lives in Glasgow.

"You party so much yet you don't neglect your religion"

Ekene Ogbechie is a pharmacist and a former singer in a band. Currently an MBA student, she is a Supernumerary member of Opus Dei.

"I love my work, I love caring for people."

Kristina Bozkova is a Registered Nurse working in a London hospital, and is a Numerary member of Opus Dei.

"I consider everything in the light of my vocation"

Anne-Marie Walker is a Children's Book Editor and Publisher. Living in Liverpool with her husband, she is a Supernumerary member of Opus Dei.

"It has strengthened my relationship with Christ"

Jocelyn Owens, is a housewife with 8 children. She lives in Lancashire, and is a Supernumerary member of Opus Dei..

A vocation to seek sanctity in ordinary life

Interview with Stephen Tsang, an architect working in Chelsea, London.

Everything has meaning and purpose

Interview with Ashley Stratford, who works as a Town Planning Consultant in Manchester.

Reading "The Way" changed my life

Interview with Oskari Juurikkala, from Finland, who is studying Law at the London School of Economics.

pdf | document generated automatically from <https://opusdei.org/en-uk/article/members-and-cooperators-in-britain/> (12/03/2026)